2Q18 Commentary

In the second quarter, global equity markets experienced an increase in volatility. While nearly all equity markets suffered losses late in the quarter, U.S. growth stocks served as a bright spot, helping to boost quarterly returns for the NASDAQ Composite Index² (+6.61%) and the S&P 500 Index (+3.43%). The Nikkei 225 Index² also did well during the quarter (+4.12% in local currency). In contrast, emerging market shares suffered substantial losses for the quarter as the MSCI Emerging Markets Index² declined -7.96%, reflecting in part the continued stepwise tightening of U.S. overnight interest rates, which increases the burden of dollar denominated debt for some companies based in emerging countries. Shares of Chinese companies in particular plunged for the quarter, as U.S./China trade disputes built momentum.

In terms of the underlying dynamics of equity market performance, while both growth and value declined in the quarter, growth-oriented stocks outperformed value stocks as the MSCI EAFE Growth Index² and the MSCI EAFE Value Index² posted returns of 0.11% and -2.64%, respectively.

The Marsico International Opportunities Fund posted a return of 1.00% for the second quarter and outperformed its benchmark, the MSCI EAFE Index², which returned -1.24%.

Primary Contributors⁵:

Stock selection and an overweight allocation to the Information Technology sector⁸ was the primary driver of performance during the period. The Fund benefitted from stock selection in the Health Care sector. Stock selection was also strong in the Financials sector.

Primary Detractors⁵:

The Fund did not have any exposure to the Energy sector, the strongest-performing sector of the benchmark index during the period, which detracted from performance. Stock selection was also a detractor in the Industrials sector.

Investments in foreign securities generally, and emerging markets in particular, may be riskier than U.S. investments for a variety of reasons such as, without limitation, unstable international, political and economic conditions, currency fluctuations, foreign controls on investment and currency exchange, foreign governmental control of some issuers, potential confiscatory taxation or nationalization of companies by foreign governments, sovereign solvency considerations, withholding taxes, a lack of adequate company information, less liquid and more volatile exchanges and/or markets, ineffective or detrimental government regulation, and other factors. In addition, the Fund and the stocks and markets in which it invests are subject to other general risks that include volatility and instability, periods of cyclical change and decline, that investors may at times avoid investments in equity securities, and that the investment adviser may select investments for the Fund that do not perform as anticipated.
